AXE & SHIELD

FACULTY . . . 13

Viking students and faculty of Chester T. Lane Junior High School worked hard to make the 'duo world of school—academic and activities' a success for the 1969-70 year.

Many subjects were offered to students with the future of each well in mind. Seventh and eighth graders had a well-planned schedule ranging from English to physical education. Freshmen had an equally good program with foreign language included plus a chance to elect their choices of classes in some areas.

For the fun at school, Viking students joined seventh period activities, and all students are encouraged to participate in at least one area. Lane's fun also covers the sports program. These teams work to achieve for the pride of the student body and the school, itself.

The AXE & SHIELD staff wished to show our view of the successful 1969-70 school year, to be recorded and remembered by everyone as the 'duo world of school—academic and activity.'

Social Studies Cover World Events

A social studies class is required in the seventh and eighth grades at Lane, and freshmen can elect to take citizenship, the only ninth grade class in this department.

Seventh grade classes study world geography in their class. During the last nine weeks, a concentrated study is done on the state of Indiana.

Eighth graders devote an entire year of study to the American heritage. This course also includes current events with study of film strips and newspapers.

Ninth grade citizenship is a study of our government. This class teaches each student his responsibilities to his country.

Scott Hedeem, Deb Niblick, Debbie Fritz, Dan Wade, Rob Audman and Royce Lane study posters in room 208. Mr. McClelland displays these posters which pertain to American rights and duties for his citizenship classes.

Jeanne Morris points out the answer in her seventh grade history class as Linda Kallenbach and Mrs. Holmes watch. Map study is a part of the geography section of this class.

Students in Miss Nichols American History class display their projects on United States and its background. Group discussion lends to thorough study in this section of the class.

A Study of the English Language . . .

Mrs. Dillion holds the attention of this seventh grade class as she reads parts from the next day's assignment. Literature is usually a favorite section of the English classes.

Mrs. Carlson helps Sally Blake, Kent Moss, Jane Hollingsworth, Doug Rice, Chris Updike, Cheri Rolland and George Ludwig prepare for an in-class debate. Use of the card file was the topic of discussion as these debaters prepared their material.

Every student at Lane is enrolled in at least one class in the Language Arts Department. Students in the seventh, eighth and ninth grades learn grammar, composition, speech, spelling and literature. These classes also use the library throughout the year.

Dramatics class was offered for the first time this year as an elective to ninth graders. And, seventh grade students were enrolled in Developmental Reading.

The aim of the language arts program at Lane is to achieve good communication, oral and written, and to gain an appreciation of literature.

Drama student Beth Shown admired her Christmas gift, a part of her role in the skits which were written and produced by groups of drama students. Mrs. Crum's classes performed their Christmas skits for several other classes of students.

... Enriches Lives for the Future

Ward Welti, Connie Wharton, Amy Shaw and Terry Adam follow Mr. Graham's directions in learning about the magazines housed in Lane's library. These students were preparing to learn the correct use of the Readers' Guide while studying in the library during their reading class.

Chuck Shoemaker watches Mike Anderson as he types out a message on the telegraph set in general science. After studying the working order of the set, students learned how to send messages on it.

Learning science now will be useful in the future for most people, and all Vikings are learning some scientific facts.

Seventh grade students have one semester of science which also includes a unit on health.

Eighth graders have a full year of science class, which also includes health study. These students learn the basics of the subject plus several non-living sciences such as light, sounds, magnetism, electricity and weather.

Freshmen at Lane have two courses from which to choose for their science study. Biology and general science classes are offered to them. Life and physical sciences are taught in these ninth grade courses.

Science Teaches Information and Skill

As Mr. Wells prepares to dissect a bat, Matt Vachon turns to the class and Tom Broxton watches and waits for the action.

Throughout the school year, biology classes are provided with many movies to enhance their program of learning the life sciences.

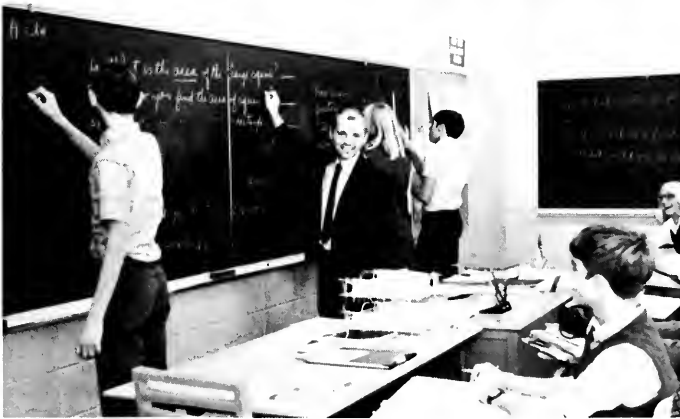

Math Students Conquer Numbers

Four mathematics classes are offered to the 860 students at Lane. Seventh grade students begin with a modern approach of review of fractions, decimals and percentages. In the eighth grade, geometry and negative numbers are introduced to the course content. Freshmen students are enrolled in either algebra or general mathematics. Algebra classes review all math up to the ninth grade and then introduce equations, story problems and other math problems. General mathematics continues the study of numbers, fractions and other already established math teaching.

Junior high mathematics gives a basic foundation for future classes in this department as students go on to high school and more specialized study.

Using a chart to learn least common multiples and the greatest common factors help these seventh grade students. These items are basic to future math classes.

Working at the chalkboard helps students learn the areas of squares. Mrs. Smith demonstrates to his ninth grade algebra class.

Kurt Gotta explains an equation to Sharon Weiler and Mr. Habegger. Students in this eighth grade math class wait to see the correct answer.

Learning notes on the music staff is a basic for the seventh grade vocal music classes under the direction of Miss Rich.

Vocal and Instrumental Groups Learn Music Techniques and Develop Skills

Vocal and instrumental music fill the schedules of many Lane students. All three grades of Vikings have the opportunity to enroll in one of the music offerings.

Seventh grade students meet on alternating days for vocal music classes where they study basic fundamentals in music. Eighth graders are members of the Cadet Choir and they meet on alternate days and practice for the public performances they give during the year.

Concert Choir members are from the freshmen class at Lane. Singing for public and school appearances keep them busy practicing.

Instrumental music groups include the Concert Band and the Cadet Band. Seventh and eighth grade band members form the Cadet band and they work and practice to achieve the goal of a chair in the Concert Band during their freshmen year.

Mr. Hopkins spends his sixth periods helping the Concert Band perfect songs for their outside performances and contests.

Lane Artists Reveal Their Talents

Mr. Karanovich talks with Neil Kluepfel as Neil works on his pottery for his art class. Individual projects are a big part of the course requirements.

Learning to appreciate and portray life and its environmental influences is part of the art classes. Students enrolled also learn and develop skills in sketching, ceramics and sculpturing.

Seventh grade students are required to take art for nine weeks of the year. They learn only the basics of the course. When students are in the eighth grade, they may choose to take either one or two semesters of the course. These alternating classes further develop skills and tastes of the art students.

Ninth grade students are given the elective of art offered on the alternating schedule. More detailed work is done in this more advanced class.

Mrs. Swagger's fourth period art class took time to sculpture Snoopy from snow during the first snow of the year in Fort Wayne. Every aspect of art finds its way into the students' lives.

John Payton watches with apparent interest while Chuck Schoemaker and Kevin Demerritt work on their drafting. Mr. Petrie works with ninth grade boys in learning drafting skills.

Practical Arts Include Shop and Home Ec

Seventh grader John Henry busily works with the metal lathe during his shop class. Working with wood and metal teaches skills to be used in the future.

Lane's department of practical arts includes classes in industrial arts and home economics. Wood and metal shop develop crafts for the boys as well as drafting instruction. Boys learn to plan, carry out and evaluate worth-while projects and products for the home. Students enrolled in the industrial arts classes also learn good working habits and safety habits.

Cook, sewing, and general home care are areas covered in the home economics classes. Girls in all three grades have the opportunity to benefit and learn from the offerings of this part of the practical arts department.

All students in these classes develop skills and learn about what will help them in daily living.

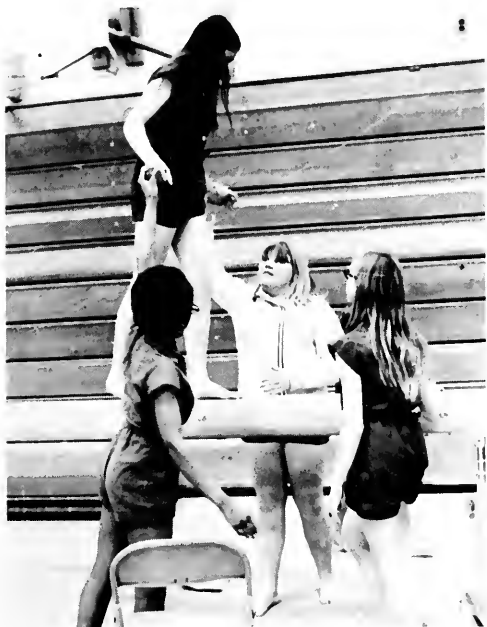

Terry Jackson marks the hem for Kathy Zimmerman's skirt during sewing class. Deb McCrea, Barb Sherwood and Tanya Herbst work on their projects.

Mr. Kramer points out the various internal parts of a preserved beef heart to Dennis Eby, Rick Rousseau, Barb Snow and Dave Barr. This study helps to understand the growth and working of the body.

Health and PE Classes Teach Skills

Eighth grade girls practice on the balance beam during gym class. Learning gymnastic skills is part of physical education.

Physical Education is a required subject for all Vikings every year in junior high school. This class meets on an alternating basis, when the students meet for another class every other day.

Students indulge in exercises, soccer, basketball, gymnastics, and other physical activity in the well-equipped gymnasium. This department also offers before and after school activities such as intramurals for both boys and girls and gymnastics and judo. These activities prove that fun can be beneficial.

Health is another alternating subject which is required for all ninth grade Vikings. Students learn about the body and how it functions. Also in this class, students are taught the book part of drivers education.

Playing volleyball is strenuous but fun for these ninth grade boys. In gym class, many new sports are introduced and played.

Three foreign languages are offered to all ninth grade Vikings. This year over 100 students are enrolled in first-year Latin, French or Spanish.

Course study for these languages includes the basic vocabulary and conversation, historical background of the country and customs of the land. Book study, tapes, records, film strips and projects give added interest to these three classes.

Dave Coburn and Denise Lutter observe Jeff Bell as he translates. Mrs. Surber checks her Latin book as she listens to Jeff's oral recitation.

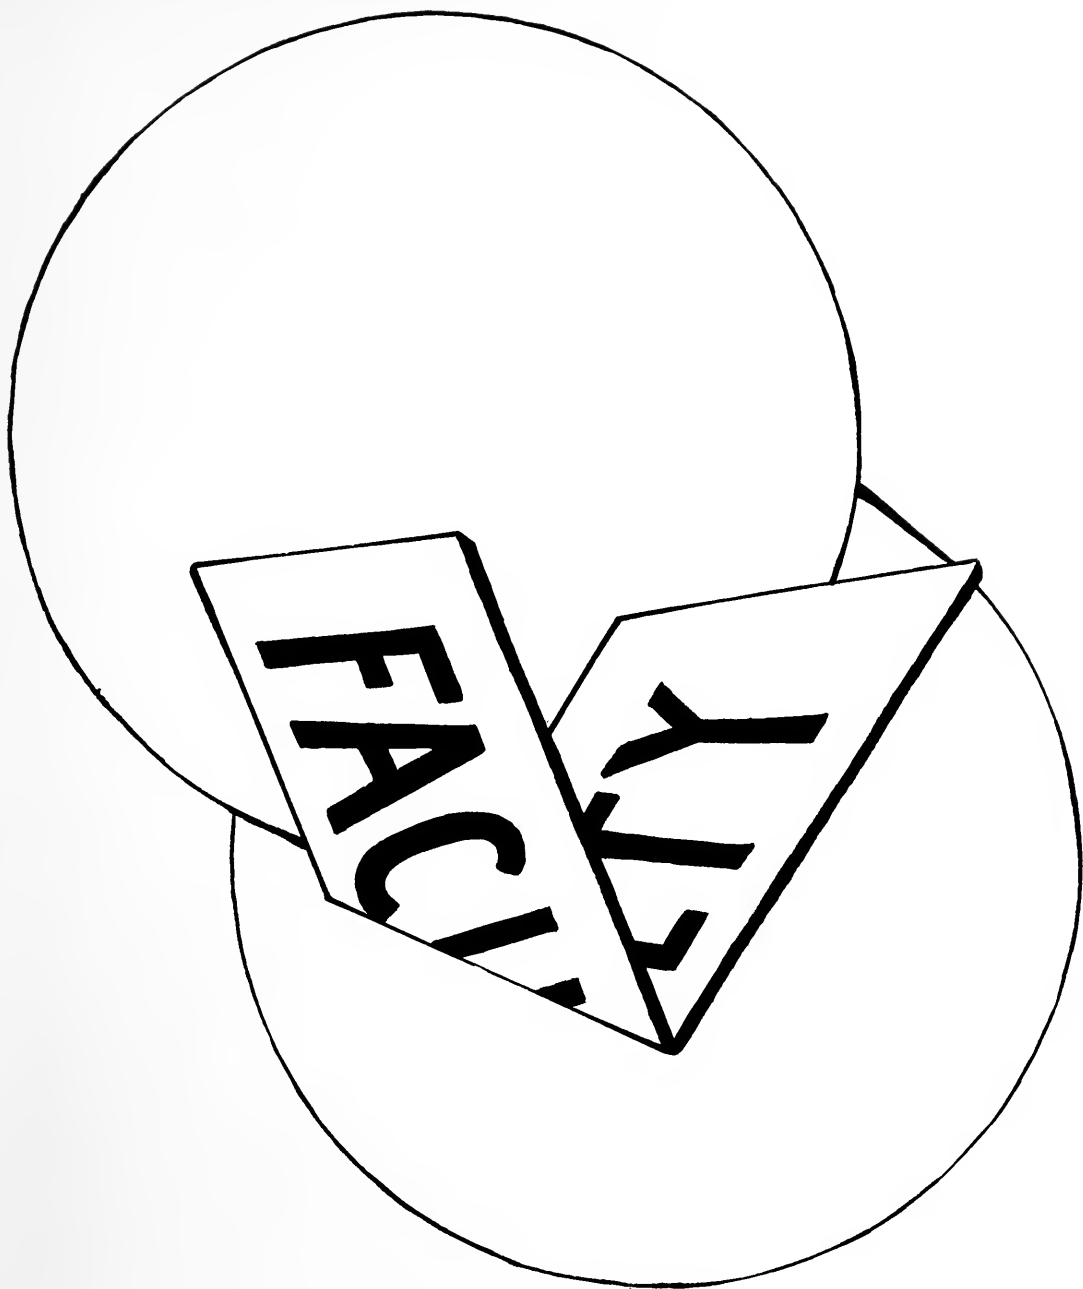

Vikings Study Languages of the World

Mrs. Schoeff giving instructions to Rob Coleman and Roberta Immel as they practice a French introduction. Chris Starky and Terri Grime await their turn for this listen in French conversation.

Janet Morris, Al Main and Linda Ziner locate points in South America, following instructions given by Tom Blake. These Spanish students were using the map in their study of Spanish-speaking countries in South America.

Mr. Ralph E. McClain

Mr. Ralph E. McClain's job as principal for Lane is busy, varied and interesting. His duties as chief administrator busy his day with decisions and judgments about the school, his staff, and all of the Lane students. Keeping the school in operation is important, but even more-so is keeping the atmosphere conducive to learning.

His years of experience as an educator as a teacher and principal, enable him to make policies to the best interest of Lane and to work for every person connected with the school.

Mr. McClain is busy, but his educational interests promote professional relationships with his teachers and students. It seems at Lane that no problem is too small and none too large for the leader of the Vikings. To all, Mr. McClain always has a smile, a kind word and time to give to any problem.

Being a Principal of a School World Requires a Certain Interest in People

Mr. McClain and Mr. Karanovich discuss plans for a forthcoming student assembly. These two men help plan and promote educational experiences for Lane students.

Mr. Nick Karanovich, assistant principal, talks to guidance counselors Mrs. McDougle and Mr. Kaufman, about homeroom guidance projects. Arranging seventh period activities, working with parent-teacher procedures, supervising the cafetorium, and handling guidance and attendance problems are some of the many duties of this job. Mr. Karanovich also works with students when they request his assistance with a special problem.

Staff Members Offer Time to Students

Mrs. Marilyn McDougle, Lane's new guidance counselor this year, chats with Barb Cleary about scheduling classes for the coming year. Counseling includes helping students find themselves and be the best students possible and acting as a go-between for students and teachers. Mrs. McDougle also sponsors the Student Council.

Mr. Dan Kaufman, guidance counselor, talks with Mike Anderson about his future plans at Snider. His guidance work includes individual and group work with students, giving their problems the discussion required before a solution can be found. Mr. Kaufman also sponsors the Student Council.

Two Secretaries Keep the School Office Open to Students and Teachers

Mrs. Viola Dougherty, seated, is secretary-treasurer for Lane. Her duties include bookkeeping for the school's funds and for the extra-curricular activities. She also does secretarial work for the teachers and Mr. McClain and the other office personnel. Mrs. Evelyn Crandall is also a secretary for the Lane office. Typing bulletins and other material are some of her duties. Both of these ladies are on hand to assist students when they need to telephone their parents or need to get specific information about the school. Mrs. Dougherty and Mrs. Crandall lend helping hands to everyone at Lane.

Ninth grade students who have devoted their study hall to help the secretaries in the office are: seated, Rick Rogers, Kim Brown, Debbie Woolf, Jim Nunley, and Suzie Ernst. ROW 1: Melody Ellert, Sue Aspacher, Janet Harvey, Linda Ziner, Elizabeth Woolf, and Penny Arlington. ROW 2: Tim Shideler, Ed La-Rocque, and Greg Anderson. ROW 3: Jan Ryan, Linda Krouse, Vicki Doster and Sue Crozier. ROW 4: Kathy Westenfield, Jill Jones and Karen King.

And Our World of 1969-70 Ends . . .

Editor's Letter

Working on the AXE AND SHIELD this year was a lot of fun and work. Learning about the construction and design that makes a yearbook was an interesting and enjoyable experience to everyone who worked on the staff.

I want to thank the Vikings on the AXE AND SHIELD staff for their cooperation and time spent on making this publication so successful. A special thanks goes to the third period publication classes who helped enormously with most of the writing and layouts, and to Larry Lehman for designing the art work for the cover and division pages.

Mrs. Ruth, our advisor, and Mr. Jim Arthur of the American Yearbook Company deserve many thanks for all of their help. Without their supervision and guidance, the production of this book would have been impossible.

Much work has been put into this book for you, and we of the staff sincerely hope that it will help you to remember your 1969-70 school world at Lane Junior High.
